

REMOTE ENCODER

This circuit allows the servo motor encoder to be used by both the servodrive and the PC. If the drive is reset to allow the motor to free-wheel, the encoder would act as a manually operated DRO. While the drive is running the motor, the PC can read back the motor position.

Second, this method permits the use of encoders that draw a higher power supply current than the drive can provide.

